Eleanor Filewood

Eleanor Filewood - Visit Perth to Broome

Eleanor started in Kings Park Perth, and saw the Boab tree which was transported from the Kimberly's. There were Avenues of trees and a War Memorial Stopped at the Pinnacles with limestone structures.

At Geraldton, they watched a DVD with the sinking and finding of HMAS Sydney, the dome in Geraldton has a dove for each seaman that died.

At Monkey Myer the Dolphins were scarce

Coral Bay – underwater sub took them over the Coral, The beach is clean and clear.

Exmouth is booming

Dampier was purpose built in 1965 as a port for Iron Ore, Gas Liquifying plant before export to Japan, some gas goes to Kalgoorlie and a lot of electricity is generated from the Gas

Millstream Pastoral Lease is now a visitors centre

Eleanor Filewood

On the way to Mr Tom Price they passed a long train every 20 minutes which go to Dampier

The BHP line goes to Port Headland and the longest train is 7 kilometres

Karajino Eco camp the park was beautiful and the trees fly in each year

Mt Whale back is 5 kilometres long and has been producing Iron Ore for 40 years

Newman was the next town with 10,000 residents

Spaghetti junction rail terminal Port Headland is the largest resource port in the world

Broome, Cable beach hotel was very relaxing

Professional Ethics

My Fellow Rotarians

Many people in business put more thought into planning an overseas trip than developing business ethics. Yet nothing can work more against the development of a positive and successful workplace culture than unethical conduct. Ethical leadership and the ability to develop ethical decision making abilities across a workplace is imperative to business success.

Most people act ethically most of the time due to good fortune rather than an educated ethical response. During times of business stress, an unreinforced understanding of ethics can lead to aberrant behaviour with unfortunate, unforeseen results. Within business it is important to create the space to educate employees about good ethical .

conduct and equip them with the capacity to make good decisions under the stresses of business

You are invited to strengthen your understanding of ethics in business by attending the Professional and Business Ethics Forum being run by Rotary District 9680 on Sunday, 19 June 2011. Click here to download the details in the attached flyer. Be assured that you will be made very welcome at a comfortable venue and you will learn as you contribute. Dress is absolutely casual. Come along and nurture your own leadership potential

Regards,
Bob Kaye-Smith. District 9680 Vocational Service
